

Ravi Menghani

2009 Golden Key International Honour Society Alumni Award Winner

Ravi Menghani is a graduate of UCLA's 5-year joint MD/MBA program at the David Geffen School of Medicine and the Anderson School of Management at UCLA. He is the co-founder of two non-profit organizations, the Alumni Mentorship Program, and the UCLA College Bowl Club. He serves or has served as a leader in all of these organizations. He has done extensive work at El Hospital Lenin Fonseca in Nicaragua and is actively involved with Project RISHI. Ravi has published research in the laboratory of Dr. Goldberg at the Jules Stein Eye Institute on Graves' ophthalmopathy. Ravi performed his undergraduate studies at UCLA and was a recipient of the Regents', Alumni, National Merit, and Distinguished Bruin Scholarships.

Ravi graduated from UCLA with College Honors, Phi Beta Kappa, and was a recipient of the Chancellors' Service Award, Charles E. Young Humanitarian Awards, and has been featured on CBS News. While an undergraduate, Ravi served as President of UCLA's Golden Key Chapter during the 2002-2003 school year and was published in GK's CONCEPTS publication. Ravi is pursuing a career in ophthalmology and healthcare administration. In his spare time, Ravi enjoys spending time with his friends, family, volunteering at the Alumni Association, and doing medical work overseas. Currently, Ravi is an intern in internal medicine at St. Mary's Medical Center in Long Beach, and has a residency appointment in ophthalmology at the University of California, Irvine.
